Price 50 cents.

Author of "The Peer's Daugnter, Decision of the Section of the Section of the Fashionable World—its pleasures and its follies. This is by far the best novel ever written by Lady Bulwer. It is a true picture of the Fashionable World—its pleasures and its follies. The characters are all drawn from real life, as the following extract from the preface will show:

"With regard to this present book of mine, were I publishing it in France, or even in any other country, I should be quite sure that the fidelity and exactitude with which I have stuck to my text, and rembodied my dramatic persons, in their own words and deeds, would be fully comprehended, and therefore appreciated, whatever other demerits or merite the work might be found to possess but in consideration of the profound and extensive ignorance of a certain set of the sof-disent critics of Eugland, I beg leave to state that every incident in this book is an historical fact, and that my only creations are, the Hawthorne Family—Rupert Singleton—and the introduction of Tom Pepys."
